GETTING TO KNOW OUR NEIGHBOURING COUNTRIES

Learning About Schools Around the World

That's right! We've learned so much about our friends
from neighbouring countries, haven't we?

Although we are geographically close to one another, we have different cultures.

We celebrate different holidays, wear different traditional costumes and enjoy different cuisines!

I wonder... are their schools different from ours too?

Good question, Tomeo! Every country has its own approach to education. Indeed, we have some unique examples right here in Asia!

In Bangladesh, there are floating schools like this one. They allow students to go to school even when their rivers overflow and flood the land.

The "school boat" simply goes down the river to pick up students, and when everyone is on board, school starts!

Wow, that's so clever!
That way, no one has to
miss out on learning!

Yes, it's a great
example of innovation in Bangladesh!

And in Bali, Indonesia,
they have deep love
and respect for the environment. Just look at this Green School!

Its structure is made of bamboo, a natural and environmentally-friendly material.

It really preserves the beauty of the surrounding forest, doesn't it?

They have practical
math and art lessons,
where they build
bridges or design rice
paddies.

And for science
lessons, they learn to grow their food.
That's what they eat
at school!

The cubbies continue to enthuse about the different schools even after the lesson.

That was a fantastic lesson. Those schools really are quite different from what we have in Singapore!

Do you think there are other unique schools out there?

I'm sure there are! Hey, why don't we look them up on the Internet?

That's an awesome idea, Tosh! We can use the school computer lab!

This or That?

Get to know someone better through this food challenge!

Between your friends and yourself, take turns to choose which food you would rather eat from the This or That list below.

THREE-YEAR-OLD TODDLER IS MIGRANT WORKERS' BEST FRIEND

How a difference in age did not stop a boy from spreading joy to a group of foreign workers

A group of construction workers are hard at work. A three-year-boy calls out to them. He waves happily whenever one of them turns to look.

For the last seven months, Jake has been waiting eagerly for his “uncles” to break for tea every week.

Jake’s mother, Anne, explained how this unusual friendship began.

“Our estate started undergoing car park upgrading works last December. Jake would always stop to watch,” she said.

And as his interest in construction vehicles grew, so too did his interactions with the workers.

From then, whenever the workers saw their little friend coming, they would stop to say hello. It’s clear they look forward to Jake’s daily visits, and miss him when he doesn’t show.

Over time, the workers shared their stories with Anne. Most of them have children back home. Jake reminded them of the families they had left behind.

“Jake was only two-and-a-half years old when we first got to know them. Even at that age, he knew that we should make friends with people from all walks of life. I didn’t have to teach him,” she said.

One lesson Jake did teach Anne is to take the time to listen to people’s stories. But perhaps the most wonderful thing they’ve both learnt is that friendship goes both ways.

For the migrant workers who have left their homes to work, Anne and Jake’s simple show of warmth was the start of a beautiful friendship. And that’s what friends are for.

Write for Kindness Junior

Issue 1/2019

Write a story between 100-120 words on an act of kindness that you have done, received or witnessed at a hawker centre.

Ng Yun Lin Megan
Raffles Girls' Primary School, P3

It was a sweltering afternoon. I jostled my way through the crowded hawker centre, squeezing past customers that were waiting to be seated. Plonking myself down on an empty seat, I slid the straps of my heavy backpack off my shoulders and sighed in relief, looking forward to a scrumptious meal.

As I was queuing up for my food, I noticed an old lady standing behind me. I then remembered what my mother told me, "You should offer the elderly something." So I turned around and asked the old lady if she wanted to be in front of me. A young lady behind me in the queue encouraged me for being so considerate. I blushed as everyone turned to look at me.

At the same time, I felt a surge of pride that I was able to assist someone. As I continued walking home with a spring in my steps, I realized that even a small action could brighten up someone's day and that everyone plays an equal role in creating a more gracious society.

★ 2nd Kong Sze Han Woodlands Ring Primary School, P3

It was another beautiful day and I was at Kampung Admiralty Hawker Centre with my family. We could not find a seat and someone saw us. The person offered to share his table with my family. We saw trays on the table so I helped to clear the trays and return them to the tray return station. My family was happy that I helped! Later, my brother saw an elderly lady carrying a bowl of hot soup and he ran to help her to her table. The elderly lady thanked my brother. It was a happy day for my family and I at the hawker centre!

★ 3rd Yip Yining Stamford Primary School, P3

One day, my family and I were at the hawker centre having dinner. After dinner, we cleared our trays and left the place. As we headed out of the hawker centre, a young lady caught up with us from behind.

"Excuse me, did you forget your water bottle?" she asked while pointing to my favourite water bottle.

"Yes! That is mine. Thank you so much!"

The young lady smiled as she handed me my water bottle and headed back to the hawker centre. I was grateful for the kindness received. I hope I can spread kindness to someone else in the future!

★ Consolation Leong Lok Teng Renee Alexandra Primary School, P4

Once at the Ghim Moh Hawker Centre, I was waiting for my father who was buying food. At the corner of my eye, I saw an old man carrying a tray of food with one hand. His other hand was holding a walking stick. The hand carrying the tray was wobbly and on the verge of falling. I immediately rushed to the old man and offered to help him hold his tray. He gratefully accepted the offer. I supported him as we walk to an empty table. He thanked me profusely. Then, I dashed to the table where I had been waiting for my father. He came with a tray of food for the both of us. As we ate, I told him about the good deed. He praised me and rewarded me with dessert!

It was a relaxing Sunday morning. As usual, my family and I went for a morning walk at Admiralty Park. The air was crisp and fresh and it was energising to feel the rays of the morning sun.

After our walk, we went to Marsiling Mall Hawker Centre for breakfast. Once we were done, my dad reminded us to clear the plates on the table so that there will be a clean table for the next customer.

As we were leaving, we saw an elderly lady with a hunchback struggling to hold her bags as well as her food tray. I noticed many people staring at her, fearing that her tray might fall over.

Suddenly, my dad appeared beside her, trying to help her hold her food tray and get to a seat. The lady looked grateful. She said thank you in Malay with a smile on her face.

I was very proud and inspired by my dad's civic-mindedness and graciousness.

One day, I went to the hawker centre to eat my favourite fish ball noodle for lunch. I went to the stall and queued up. After I placed my order, I waited for a while before I collected my food. I held my tray and started to look for a seat. That was when I noticed the crowd of people in the hawker centre was packed like sardines.

Ten minutes later, I finally found an empty seat. I quickly sat down. I wolfed down my food as quickly as I could, as I was very hungry. Just then, I saw an elderly lady holding on to a tray with a bowl of hot soup. I wanted to share my seat with her but had second thoughts about it. After that, I made up my mind and waved to the elderly lady. I asked her to have a seat at my table. I felt happy that I showed kindness to someone.

How can we practise Everyday Responsibilities?

When we practise Everyday Responsibilities, we show that we care for the environment and the people around us.

- ★ Wash your hands with soap and water.

- ★ Cover your mouth and nose with a tissue when sneezing and coughing.

- ★ Throw your waste into bins.

- ★ Return the cutlery and keep the tables clean after meals.

- ★ Keep the toilet clean and dry after use.

Unkindness Day

Kindsville is preparing for its annual Kindness Day celebrations to honour residents who have displayed Kindness-in-action during the year. Master Mean is back to wreak havoc in Kindsville. Will the Kindness Cubbies catch Master Mean and stop unkindness in Kindsville?

Season 4
Episode 5

SPARK KINDNESS, MAKE A DIFFERENCE!

Kindness Ambassadors from Unity Primary School embarked on a project to Celebrate, Inspire, and create Awareness of kindness. Some activities conducted in school were:

Caught. In. Action (C.I.A) Cards

Teachers caught students in acts of kindness and signed their C.I.A cards. Student would receive bronze, silver or gold awards based on how many signatures they had. This encouraged them to keep on spreading kindness.

Friendship Week - "My Friend is a Superhero!"

Students each chose a superhero that reminded them of their friend. They penned down their friends' good qualities and thanked them for being awesome. It was a fun way to show their friends how much they loved them.

Gratitude Week - "Be Grateful"

Pupils drew lots from a jar filled with different questions on gratitude. They wrote down their answers and put them up on a board. It reminded them about the importance of being grateful.

Through these activities, we were able to see the Unity kindness and spirit shine!

Write to Singa and the Kindness Cubbies and get a personal reply!

Dear Singa,

My name is Isabelle Sim from Paya Lebar Methodist Girls' School. I am 9 years old. I would like to share with you my little act of kindness. One day, I was at the MRT station and I saw a girl dropped her book. I picked up and ran to her. It took courage to speak to her but I knew I did a kind deed.

WELCOME TO KINDSVILLE!

Dear Singa,

It has been a long time since I last wrote to you. I had a wonderful term break during the December holidays! I also learnt that kindness is the best way to maintaining friendships.

This year, I was buddied to my brother under the school's P4 buddy system. I learned more about him and even knew his favourite food in school. We grew even closer.
